Hammond's plantation where the deputy sheriff tried to arrest them but without success, as they refused to disarm. The negroes, however, promised to go to Aiken and stand an investigation.

One of the parties implicated was arrested here this evening. His version is that Red and Lowe attempted to chastise a negro for stealing from the premises of the former; that the negro escaped from them and returned with an armed band, who did the shooting by way of retaliation. The affair causes uneasiness and alarm.

FACTS ABOUT EAST TENNESSEE.

Our Natural Scenery, &c.

Men, while they are looking for the useful and the substantial necessities of life, they at the same time admire the beautiful. A home does not answer the purposes of a home without the former, and the latter makes one far more desirable. We think we can find in Eastern Tennessee, in a more degree, both qualities. While we have our rich fields, our delightful and fertile valleys, our fine water power, our deposits of marble, stone coal, iron, &c., we also have some of the finest natural scenery on the continent. This may be realized by merely passing through on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, or by getting on one of the small steamers that run on the river from Knoxville or London to Chattanooga. But there are special points which are superb, grand, as points of observation. Passing over this line of road, the traveler has in view almost constantly the blue Smoky Mountains in the south, while to the north the Cumberland range stretches out as far as the eye can reach.

Beginning at the lower south-western border of East Tennessee, we have the Lookout Mountain at Chattanooga, rearing its bold peaks above the clouds, and standing there like some giant sentinel keeping watch over that busy and prosperous city. It is about six miles from the city to Point Lookout. Carriages or saddle horses may be procured, and hundreds of visitors avail themselves of the privilege of viewing the grand scenery that presents itself there. One can see, from four or five States at a view, from that point. Houses of entertainment are kept up there, and it is becoming one of the famous summer resorts of the South.

Passing east, the traveler would find it interesting to get off the cars at the beautiful village of Cleveland, which will some day be the seat of no mean pretensions, and go out to the celebrated Ducktown copper mines, about which we will give more specific and extended information soon. Or if he wished to see very rich land, he might get off at Charleston, only twelve miles further east, and go up or down the Hiwassee Valley.

Coming up to Athens he might go over to the Sulphur Springs in Rhea county, celebrated for the delightful climate in which they are situated, as well as for beautiful scenery along Walden's Ridge. The White Cliff Sulphur Springs of Monroe county are also celebrated for their medicinal qualities, and one day will become a favorite resort for the invalid or pleasure seeker. From Loudon, daily steamers run to Kingston and Rockwood, affording a fine opportunity to the traveler to visit the table lands of the Cumberland, situated in Morgan and Cumberland counties; also the celebrated Roane Iron Works at Rockwood. Houses or buggies may be procured at Kingston or Rockwood.

Coming to Knoxville, a ride of sixteen miles on the Knoxville and Charleston Road, and nine miles in a stage coach, takes one to the justly celebrated Monteale Springs, the Saratoga of the South. As a summer resort for the invalid or the pleasure seeker, this point can not be surpassed. Situated at the base of the Chilhowee Mountain in Blount county, it is the center of one of the most romantic and attractive regions to be found anywhere. Conveyances are always at hand by which one may go from the Springs to the top of the mountain, where one of the most enchanting views imaginable is afforded the visitor. As far as the eye can reach to the east and west, and to the Cumberland range on the north, the Valley of East Tennessee is spread out like some varied and beautiful landscape painting, seemingly almost too beautiful for reality. From McMillan's Station, twelve miles east of Knoxville, conveyances are provided to Lea's Springs, at the south base of Clinch Mountain. This is also fast becoming a favorite summer resort. A fine hotel is kept there, supplied with all the delicacies the country affords, while the road is comparatively a good one, rendering the place easy of access, being not more than two or three hours' ride from the railroad. Still farther east is Tate's Springs, also getting to be a famous summer resort.

At Morristown, the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad connects with the great through line and runs forty-five miles to Wolf Creek, nine miles from Warm Springs, North Carolina. It passes through a rich variety of natural scenery. The rich bottom lands of the French Broad and Pigeon rivers is equal to any land anywhere. The mountains through which the road passes are rugged, and the scenery wild and romantic. The Warm Springs are situated right in the midst of the mountains, and is one of the most delightful places in warm weather to be found anywhere. A regular line of stages run from Morristown to Cumberland Gap, and on to the railroad at Rockcastle River, Kentucky. This road is through the wildest mountain scenery. At Rogersville Junction, a branch road runs out twelve miles to the pleasant town of Rogersville, the county site of Hawkins county, from which place one may travel over Clinch mountain to Hancock county, or up the rich valley of the Holston river to the Virginia line. From Greenville to Jonesboro', the railroad passes through a fertile valley, abounding in fine orchards of fruit and rich fields of grain, while to the north and to the south, frequent highly picturesque views of the mountain ranges are visible. This is one of the most delightful regions to be found anywhere. A few miles from Greenville are the Clinch county Iron Works, operated by companies which are doing much to build up the country. Roads diverge from this place into North Carolina, passing through the mountains about Point Rock. Greenville is celebrated as being the home of Ex-President Johnson and as being the center of a fine agricultural region. Jonesboro' is in a highly picturesque locality, and is celebrated as being the oldest town in the State. Many of our best and most talented men were either born or have resided there. The road from Jonesboro' to Bristol is through a highly picturesque country, and a very attractive one. Any man in search of fine natural scenery, cannot fail to find it, together with many other interesting and attractive features, if he will pass over the route we have above named out.

There are very many improvements projected and being completed here. The old Kaylor block will be mostly torn down and improved this fall. Just opposite the depot a large block of business houses is going up, built by a stock company composed of Major Hathburn, Xen. Wheeler, T. G. Montague and J. N. Tower. The cost will be about $27,000.

The Roane Iron Company's Rolling Mill is working double turns and is rolling several miles of iron for your East Tennessee road.

The Chronicle is indebted mainly for its large subscription list in Chattanooga to the energy and kindness of Mr. R. S. Kindrick, one of those sterling, faithful friends, who never lose an opportunity to do a good work for the great cause.

There is a good work quietly going on in Chattanooga, worthy of notice. It is a Mission Sabbath School every afternoon in Kaylor's Hall. It gathers in the walls and the great of the city and trains them in the great Sabbath school army. It has grown in two years to be one of the institutions of the city. Messrs. Monteth, Sherwood, Witte, Pratt, and the ever faithful co-laborers, the ladies, deserve credit for this work.

Mr. Murat Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial, is named as a candidate for the Ohio Senate.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

BY HENRY R. GILSON.

Ye cannons thunder o'er the plain:

Ye cannons shake the hills:

Ye cannons rouse the sleeping main:

Till every freeman in the West

Shall hear your mighty voice

Till every loyal freeman's breast

Shall swell with patriot joys.

Run up the starry flag on high,

The red, the white, the blue:

Till every where beneath the sky

And roll the nation's banner float

On every breeze that blows.

That patriot eyes may on it gaze

Till loyal love o'erflows!

Let music float upon the air—

The tunes we love so well!

Sing ye the nation's songs, ye fair!

Loud peal the lively bells!

Let life and trumpet sound their notes

And roll the doubling drum.

Till of the world the chorus floats—

"July the Fourth has come!"

The Declaration, be it read!

That all its truths may be known:

Let history tell us of the deed

Who struck the conq'ring blow.

Who fought that we might freemen be,

And have a country dear.

Who with their blood freed freedom's tree

That we its fruit might share.

Come forth, ye sons of freedom, come!

Come forth ye daughters fair!

Uplift your eyes to Heaven's dome

An breath the patriot's prayer.

Thank God that He this land hath made

Thank God for freedom's boon,

And pray that treason's baleful shade

May ne'er obscure our noon.

Now to your country's altars go;

Invoke the hallowed dead;

And swear by all that's dear below

To lead the life they led!

Swear to uphold your country's laws

Unshaken to keep her oaths

And this forever be your cause—

"My Country and my God!"

For this is Independence Day,

Our Country's natal morn'g.

Just five and ninety years ago

Fair freedom here was born.

The stars and stripes first glittered, then

Bright in the golden sky.

And Manhood's Rights were claimed by men

Who'd sworn to win or die.

And God hath made our country great,

And broad and high her path;

And all the blows of chast'ning fate

In love have been—not wrath.

And onward upward still we go,

A giant in our might;

Fearing no evil and no foe,

But mailed with Truth and Right.

Then blessed be July the Fourth,

Columbia's natal day!

In South and East, in West and North

Let freedom's bright array

Unto the sky, unto the earth,

Forever and for aye,

Proclaim in thunder-tones the birth

Of Independence day!
